

Ea 5. Yn Fer-ynsee Cadlagh

Vershion aashagh

Va fer-ynsee cliaghtey goaill snap beg dy chadley dagh fastyr ayns y çhamyr-vrastyl. Tra ren ny schoillaryn briaght jeh cre'n oyr v'eh jannoo shoh, ren eh gra dy row eh goll dys Çheer ny Hashlishyn dy loayrt rish shenn gheiney creeney.

Fastyr dy row, er laa erskyn towse çheh, ren paart jeh ny schoillaryn hene tuittym nyn gadley ayns y çhamyr-vrastyl. Tra va'n fer-ynsee troiddey roo, ren ad gra:

“Agh vainshter, ren shin goll dy veeiteil rish ny shenn gheiney creeney ayns Çheer ny Hashlishyn.”

“Dy firrinagh?” ren yn fer-ynsee briaght jeh lesh pooar. “As cre ren ad gra?”

“Ren shin briaght row fer-ynsee schoill çheet dys shen dagh fastyr, agh ren ad gra nagh row ad rieu er nakin lhied y phersoon.”

No 5. The Sleepy Teacher

Easy version

A teacher used to have a nap every afternoon in the classroom. When the students asked him why he did this he said that he went to the Land of Visions to talk to old wise masters.

One afternoon, on an exceedingly hot day, some of the students themselves fell asleep in the classroom. When the teacher was telling them off, they said:

“But sir, we went to meet the old wise masters in the Land of Visions.”

“Indeed?” the teacher demanded. “And what did they say?”

“We asked if a school teacher came there every afternoon, but they said they’d never seen such a person.”